

Taking No More Chances

JAIL BREAK? No, just a group of workmen placing iron bars on the main floor windows of Police Headquarters, to forestall possible attempted escape of prisoners. Four such attempts, all unsuccessful, have been made in the past. (Photo Graphic.)

AIDS THE POOR. Mrs. James J. Walker made the first purchase yesterday at the anniversary celebration of the Opportunity Shop, conducted by Association for Improving Condition of Poor, 46 West 47th St. Photo shows (l. to r.): Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Ned Arden Flood and Miss Ruth Malcolmson ("Miss America" of 1924). Death Ends Mastbaum's Career

WILL SUE. Mrs. Louise Geist Riehl (above), former maid of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, will ask divorce of husband, whose charge in annulment suit that she told him she got a $5,000 bribe from slain minister's widow led to reopening of murder case. (Graphic.)
